The term 'domestic commodity or product' means—(i) An agricultural commodity that is produced in the United States; and (ii) A food product that is processed in the United States substantially using agricultural commodities that are produced in the United States. Substantial means over 51% of the final processed product consists of agricultural commodities that were grown domestically. Products from Guam, American Samoa, Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, and the Northern Mariana Islands are allowed under this provision as territories of the United States.

There are limited exceptions to the Buy American requirements that allow for the purchase of non-domestic food when it is truly impractical to use domestic food. In order for the District to approve an exception, the Contractor must document, and the District must make findings supporting, the following:

- (a) Competitive bids reveal that the costs of the U.S. product are significantly higher than the non-domestic products; or
- (b) Use of a non-domestic alternative food is necessary because the domestic good is not produced or manufactured in sufficient and reasonably available quantities of a satisfactory quality.

The District will also consider the use of domestic alternative foods before approving an exception. For example, the District may consider using domestic apples as a substitute for non-domestic pears.

This advance written notice shall be deemed to have been given on the date the notice is sent by the District to the address for written notices provided below by hand delivery, U.S. Mail, commercial delivery service, such as Fed Ex or UPS, or fax.
